the battle”

Volusia County's Veterans Services Division informs veterans and their dependents of benefits to which they are entitled and assists them by filing claims and supporting documents.

Our counselors serve the 70,000-plus U.S. veterans and their dependents in Volusia County.

Our services are offered without charge and without discrimination.

Filing for benefits

Volusia County's trained veterans services counselors can assist veterans and their dependents in filing for all benefits to which they may be entitled, including:

- Medical treatment
- Disability compensation
- Pensions
- Vocational rehabilitation
- Education and training
- Educational assistance for dependents
- Home loans
- Life insurance
- Burial claims
- Dependency and indemnity
- Widow's death pension
- Survivor benefits

Other services

In addition to filing claims, our counselors assist veterans and their dependents by:

- Explaining veterans benefits.
- Acting as an advocate for veterans and their dependents
- Providing assistance in dealing with the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs, V.A. medical facilities, and other federal and state agencies.
- Visiting private homes when the veteran or dependent cannot travel to the Veterans Services Office.
- Visiting nursing homes throughout the county.

Veterans services officers

Serving in the military is demanding and sometimes dangerous. Benefits are offered to veterans in return for their sacrifices to our defense. However, understanding these benefits and making application for them often can be confusing.

With the enactment of Florida Statute 292.11 in 1945, assistance was made available in filing claims for benefits for veterans and their families. From that day forward, the path was cleared for proficient county service officers to be employees in each of Florida's 67 counties.

Volusia County's Veterans Services Division is an advocate for veterans. Our counselors know the extent, meaning and application of the laws that have been passed by the U.S. Congress and Florida Legislature in the interest of veterans and their dependents.

Our staff will apply specialized knowledge in the way best suited to the needs of each veteran and his or her beneficiaries.

All information conveyed to our staff is protected under federal privacy guidelines and is confidential.
